ARE YOU PREGNANT OR BREASTFEEDING?
KNOW YOUR RIGHTS IN NEW YORK STATE

Pregnancy discrimination in the workplace violates Federal and New York State law

WORKING WHILE PREGNANT

It is illegal for an employer to fire an employee because she is pregnant or may become pregnant—or to change the terms, conditions, and privileges of employment because of pregnancy, childbirth, or related conditions. It is also illegal for an employer to refuse to hire or to promote a candidate because she is pregnant or may become pregnant.

As of January 2016, New York State law explicitly guarantees pregnant workers the right to reasonable accommodations for any pregnancy-related conditions, including:

- occasional breaks to rest or drink water,
- a modified work schedule,
- leave for related medical needs,
- available light duty assignments, and
- transfers away from hazardous duty.

Your employer may not require you to take leave because you are pregnant. If you take medical leave due to a pregnancy-related condition or childbirth, your employer must hold your job for you as long as they do for employees who take medical leave for other reasons. You may have other return-to-work rights under the federal Family and Medical Leave Act, the NYS Disability Benefits Law, and the NYS Paid Family Leave Law.

WORKING WHILE BREASTFEEDING

Under NYS law, it is illegal for your employer to treat you differently because you are breastfeeding. Nursing mothers are guaranteed break time to pump breast milk at work.

- For up to three years following childbirth, you have the right to take reasonable unpaid break time or to use paid break time or meal time each day, so that you can express breast milk at work.

TAKING PAID FAMILY LEAVE

In 2016, Governor Cuomo signed into law the nation’s strongest and most comprehensive Paid Family Leave policy. Working families will no longer have to choose between caring for their loved ones and risking their economic security.

As of January 1, 2018, most employees who work in New York State for private employers are eligible to take Paid Family Leave. If you are a public employee, your employer may choose to offer Paid Family Leave.

New York’s Paid Family Leave provides job-protected, paid time off so you can:

- bond with a newly born, adopted or fostered child;
- care for a close relative with serious health condition;
- assist loved ones when a family member is deployed abroad on active military service.

You can continue your health insurance while on leave and are guaranteed the same or a comparable job after your leave ends. If you contribute to the cost of your health insurance, you must continue to pay your portion of the premium cost while on Paid Family Leave.

Your employer cannot discriminate or retaliate against you for requesting or taking Paid Family Leave or pregnancy and childbirth-related short-term disability.

For more information, see ny.gov/pregnancyrights or text PREGNANT to 81336.

If you believe that you have been discriminated because of your pregnancy, or denied reasonable accommodation for a medical condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, you can file a complaint with the New York State Division of Human Rights: www.dhr.ny.gov or 1-888-392-3644
Women’s sexual and reproductive health is related to multiple human rights, including the right to life, the right to be free from torture, the right to health, the right to privacy, the right to education, and the prohibition of discrimination. The Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (CESCR) and the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) have both indicated that women’s right to health includes their sexual and reproductive health.

This means that States have obligations to respect, protect and fulfill rights related to women’s sexual and reproductive health. The Special Rapporteur on the right to health maintains that women are entitled to reproductive health care services, and goods and facilities that are:

- available in adequate numbers;
- accessible physically and economically;
- accessible without discrimination; and
- of good quality.

Examples of violations

Despite these obligations, violations of women’s sexual and reproductive health and rights are frequent...including:

- denial of access to services that only women require;
- poor quality services;
- subjecting women’s access to services to third party authorization;
- forced sterilization, forced virginity examinations, and forced abortion, without women’s prior consent;
- female genital mutilation (FGM); and
- early marriage.

Causes and consequences of sexual and reproductive health violations

Violations of women’s sexual and reproductive health and rights are often due to deeply engrained beliefs and societal values pertaining to women’s sexuality. Patriarchal concepts of women’s roles within the family mean that women are often valued based on their ability to reproduce.

Early marriage and pregnancy, or repeated pregnancies spaced too closely together - often as the result of efforts to produce male offspring because of the preference for sons - has a devastating impact on women’s health with sometimes fatal consequences. Women are also often blamed for infertility, suffering ostracism and being subjected to various human rights violations as a result.

Relevant human rights standards [excerpts]

* CEDAW guarantees women equal rights in deciding "freely and responsibly on the number and spacing of their children and to have access to the information, education and means to enable them to exercise these rights."

* CEDAW also specifies that women’s right to education includes "access to specific educational information to help to ensure the health and well-being of families, including information/advice on family planning." www.ohchr.org
